UNDERSTANDING KEY RESULTS OF THE SURVEY

EDUCATION

Education is a top priority for children across Europe. However, children unanimously express dissatisfaction with the current education system.

- Only 14% of children are absolutely certain that what they are learning in school is useful for their future.
- A staggering 33% do not find learning in school useful for their future.

When asked what they would like to learn in school, children across the EU responded:

Life skills	75%
Digital skills	47%
Social skills	54%
Emotional skills	57%
How to get involved in decision-making	44%
Healthy lifestyles	42%
Child rights	37%
Climate change	34%
Nothing different	7%

"We all need to explore practical skills which will help us to live our everyday life. For example, it is very important how to save money." (Nico, 16, Bulgaria)

MENTAL HEALTH

Addressing mental health challenges is a key concern for children.

- Two in three children feel that school pressure has a negative effect on their mental health.
- More than half of children, particularly from minority groups such as LGBTQ+ children (67%), feel that uncertainty about the future impacts their mental health.
- Social challenges, such as loneliness (54%), bullying (33%) or discrimination (44%), are also big contributors to mental health challenges.

When asked how adults can support children's mental health and well-being, children responded that adults can:

Show children that mental health problems are not something to be ashamed of	64%
Teach children in schools about mental health and what they can do to feel better	64%
Make it easier and faster to access mental health support (e.g. psychological)	57%
Help children access support without asking permission from parents	49%
Teach children in finding solutions	46%
Address the origin of mental health issues (social media, bullying, racism, discrimination...)	44%

"My major drawback for me is that children are not taken seriously when they speak up on serious mental health issues such as depression." (Amel, 15, Malta)

More open discussions about mental health challenges and solutions: 49%

Share more information about healthy diets: 34%

BREAKING BARRIERS TO INCLUSION

Discrimination remains a pervasive concern, particularly among minority groups.

- 71% of LGBTQ+ children face discrimination because of their sexual orientation.
- One in four (25%) children living in alternative care report discrimination based on their care status.
- Only 22% of children report not having experienced or witnessed discrimination so far.

When asked how adults can help tackle discrimination, children said that adults can:

Set a good example by treating others kindly	46%
Provide better support for victims of discrimination	43%
Create safe environments where children can speak up	42%
Raise awareness about discrimination	42%
Have more conversations and exchanges with parents or at home	40%
Engage more with children who have experienced discrimination	40%
Make stricter laws against discrimination	34%
Organise workshops in schools	34%

Have more public discussions about inclusiveness: 34%

Challenge prejudices: 31%

Make minorities more visible in politics and media: 25%

"There is a lot of exclusion towards children with disabilities and without intervention of the whole community this will not be solved." (Helena, 14, Croatia)

MAKING CHILDREN'S VOICES HEARD

While children appreciate being consulted, they assert the need for meaningful participation in decision-making processes.

- 70% of children recommended providing them with more opportunities to participate in decision-making to ensure their voices are heard in matters affecting their lives.

When asked whether they think politicians in their country worry about the same things as children, children responded:

No, not at all	33%
No, not very much	33%
Somewhat	16%
To some extent	8%
I'm not sure	7%
Yes	2%

"Politicians are not interested in children because they cannot vote. This is why they are not aware of our problems. They believe that we will grow up and our problems will disappear." (Jury, 14, Bulgaria)

CLIMATE CHANGE

Climate change is another key concern that many children share for their future.

- 70% of children are worried or very worried about the impacts of climate change.
- 65% of children feel that politicians are not doing enough to address climate change.

When asked whether children think politicians do enough to tackle climate change, children responded:

Not quite enough	34%
Not enough at all	33%
To some extent	16%
I'm not sure	10%
Yes	5%

"We often discuss the climate change at school. I think that the topic concerns all of us. I think that maybe politicians believe that they are doing enough but they should do more." (Daria, 14, Bulgaria)

WHAT THE EUROPEAN UNION CAN DO

Children call on adults to remember that they are not just the future. Their priorities matter here and now.

What children think the EU should prioritise to improve children's lives or future opportunities

Education	64%
Mental health	59%
Addressing bullying and violence against children	57%
More job or study opportunities	42%
Addressing war and conflict	39%
